COVENANT CONNECTION

A PUBLICATION OF COVENANT PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

From the Pastor's Desk

This past Sunday three of our folks shared their stories of those who have been shining examples of faith and faithfulness for them; perhaps their comments stimulated reflection on your part about those who have been such examples for you. We do not come to faith alone, and we do not understand faithfulness in a vacuum. We learn from others! Have you considered whether you might be such an example for someone else - in your family, among your friends, or for acquaintances who have observed you from afar? In you, do they see a great example of faith and faithfulness to God or do they see a hypocrite who professes faith on Sunday morning and then betrays that faith the rest of the week? Does your life reflect the faith you hold and the faithfulness to which God calls you each and every day?

Across the world there are a host of challenges and existential threats – conflicts in the Middle East and Ukraine, political rancor in this year's presidential election, horrific destruction wreaked by recent hurricanes, and the rapid pace of technological change. Our faith does not offer a safe harbor away from those realities, but a resource to draw on in facing them. As a community of Christ, we seek to spark and nurture faith to sustain us, support one another through whatever challenges arise, and share the Gospel in faithful ways within our walls and far beyond. Together we wrestle with hard questions of faith and go wherever God sends us as heralds of the gospel

HEART

Dear Covenant family: Thank you! I was overwhelmed by the outpouring of love on Sunday, October 6th, recognizing my 25 years of service at Covenant. The hymn and the painting are perfect and made just to fit me. Being Minister of Music is most definitely not a job to me but an act of love. Thank you for the many years of love and support of my ministry with Covenant. The best is yet to come! I am truly blessed!

Peace, Jeff Ryman

With Sympathy

Please keep in your prayers Lu Deardorff and her family on the death of Lu's sister, Dorothy Camden, on October 7th. May God grant her eternal rest and grant to Lu and her family comfort and peace.

CONTRIBUTION ENVELOPES

For 2025, if you do not need Contribution Envelopes we can assign you a different number and you can save the church the cost of a box of envelopes. Please contact Dave Metz.

FROM THE PASTOR'S DESK (cont'd)

and instruments of God's love, justice, and peace. Are you joining in that good work, or are you just along for the ride?

All that good work is supported by your contributions to our General Fund and the sharing of your time and talents. It is holy work that is supported by staff who lead worship, offer pastoral care, teach classes, and care for children in our preschool, but also by volunteers who do that work too. These church facilities in which so much of that ministry is carried out require maintenance and care throughout the year, including payment for increasing utility and insurance costs. And as good stewards of the financial gifts entrusted to our care, Session has approved hiring a financial secretary to aid in managing the increasingly complex finances of our church and preschool.

So often we take the church for granted. But we shouldn't! We have been blessed by the generous support and vision of saints who have gone before us, and we should not only appreciate their faithfulness, but continue their legacy into the future. In the coming days you will receive a letter from the Stewardship & Finance Team with a pledge card asking you to make commitments for 2025. Give those commitments prayerful consideration, not as an obligation, but as an opportunity to share in ministry and to respond gratefully to God for all the blessings you enjoy. These are commitments that enable us to do God's holy work in this place and beyond, as a Covenant family, together!

The Presbyterian Coffee Project began in 2001 and is a collaboration between Equal Exchange and the Presbyterian Church USA. It is a part of PCUSA's Enough for Everyone Program and seeks to involve and engage more Presbyterian communities and individuals in supporting and advocating for small farmers and indigenous cooperatives around the world.

Covenant has been a part of this program almost since its inception and the Outreach Team would like to highlight some of the ways our monthly support makes a difference for some of our neighbors beyond our borders. The information below is from an article retrieved from the Equal Exchange website to help you learn about one of the coffee growers.

Equal Exchange sells organic coffee.

Particularly in Colombia, coffee is big business, and the Colombian government supports coffee in meaningful ways. However, the government's support focuses on conventional coffee, not organic coffee. In practice, this ends up producing a strong culture of conventional coffee in Colombia, but organic coffee is hard to come by.

Don Luis is one of 176 farmer members of the coffee farmer co-op, ASPROCAFE. This co-op and its members produce organic products. What does "organic coffee" mean? The shortest, simplest answer is: "coffee grown without using harmful chemicals and pesticides." That definition can be an accurate representation of some organic coffees. But the truth is that there is a wide spectrum of what organic can mean, in general, and in coffee specifically. How is this organic philosophy brought to life?

- Shade produced by taller fruit trees also creates a growing environment that supports high quality coffee, allowing the sugars in the coffee cherries to develop slowly
- Tall, hardy, obstructive plants are used along the borders of the organic plots, to create protective boundaries from chemicals that neighboring farms might use – this helps protect organic farmers from losing organic certification from chemical drift
- Specific plants have scents that are off-putting to certain coffee insect pests, and these plants are strategically incorporated into the farm as pest control techniques, instead of spraying chemical deterrents
- Specific nitrogen-fixing plants are included in the farm to help reincorporate this necessary element back into the soil, naturally
- Compost systems, both the more standard style as well as vermiculture (worm composting) systems are used to turn farm, processing, and home organic matter back to soil-enriching compost that is reapplied to the farm
- Flowering plants and hives make welcoming habitats for pollinators
- Below ground, the root systems of these various plants and trees help keep the rich topsoil in place on these steep slopes that might otherwise be vulnerable to erosion

Missionary UPDATE

FROM FAITH'S HEART — August 2024 Update (Crystal & Raphael)

During our small-scale farmers' training in August, we were privileged to have representatives from the Joint Association of Persons With Disabilities in attendance. (As an added bonus, they were old friends from my days at the orphanage in Otutulu!)

The number of Nigerians now facing food insecurity is 31.8 million people. Among the most vulnerable to this crisis are Persons with Disabilities (PWDs), who face an even higher risk of food insecurity due to systemic biases in social and financial inclusion. That is why we felt it was so important to begin making an intentional effort to reach out to this community for our agricultural trainings and to work with them on ensuring that our programs are accessible.

They left very excited about the many possibilities for PWDs to be involved in farming their own food AND farming to make a profit, especially through the idea of small cooperatives wherein they leverage the strengths of the different abilities within their community for division of labor. They have already submitted names of more candidates for training!

"Thank you for your disability inclusive program. We look forward to more of this." (Mark)

"When I go back now, the way this country is heading, I think I will move back to the village and just start farming." (David)

"We cannot do without the parts of the body that seem weaker; and those parts that we think aren't worth very much are the ones which we treat with greater care." ~1 Corinthians 12:22-23

MOMENT for Mission

From the Moment for Mission on Sunday, October 13, given by Melissa Druff.

Stewardship season is when members of the Stewardship and Finance Team brief you on what's happened in the past year, explain why the proposed budget amount is what it is, and ask you to make pledges for 2025 covering the projected expenditures. The challenge for the Facilities Team is to contain the normal, everyday costs for the maintenance on a 60 plus year old building and grounds.

Let's look at what the Team has accomplished since I stood here last year. The team has:

- Repaired different sections of our multiple roofs to stop their leaking
- Oversaw the installation of new lighting in the choir room (after all many of us who use that room are older and need better lighting to see the music!)
- Installed animal abatement (those shiny silver what-ch-ma-call-its hanging below the gutters, fluttering in the wind). They're there to stop those stupid woodpeckers who think we're a tree
- Oversaw the installation of the new flat roof above the choir room after Rebecca Allison spent hours mopping up water and making sure dehumidifiers were employed to dry everything out. (And that's only a small part of what this very special church mouse does around the building unnoticed and underappreciated.)
- Oversaw new sewer pump installation
- Oversaw new toilets for Preschool 5 plus an ADA toilet in the bathroom down by the library
- Worked on removal of the old train from the playground and installed the new train
- Installed the music library cabinets, (If you get a chance, stop by the choir room and look at them. Jeff and Lou finally have room to store all our music.)
- Oversaw the gutters being repaired and drainage evaluated to prevent the rotting of the fascia board around the downspouts
- Covered within their budget the totally unexpected 30% increase in insurance premiums due to increased claims in other areas of the state and country due to disasters like hurricanes on the East Coast and destructive fires on the West Coast
- Trimmed back the trees on the lot across the street so school bus drivers and others do not have to pull out onto Coalter to see to turn
- Prepped for the new signage installation which included removing all the old signs, both inside and out, and repairing any damage caused by their removal (And we hope you guys like the new signage that's in place, with more to come.)

That's not all, folks! The Facilities Team has many continuing projects:

- Painting and repairing of trim boards around the downspouts
- Removing the huge Oak tree out by the small parking lot
- Working on fall cleanup and leaf removal which is scheduled for Nov 16th beginning at 9:00 AM. Any and all who just love to rake leaves are invited to participate
- Anticipating replacing several more of our air conditioning units (several of which are over 20 years old)
- Anticipating additional tree work that needs to be done around the playground to keep our little ones safe
- Doing more work on the drains leading away from the Sunday School wing because the ones we have below ground there are either collapsed or blocked by concrete dams
- And then there's those things that pop up unexpectedly like the sump pump in the past few week

Many of the expenses I've mentioned come out of the General Fund, but roof replacement, gutter replacement, sump pump replacement, air conditioning replacement, and many others I've not listed here are not paid for out of the General Fund. They come from the Building Fund. And a part of stewardship of this congregation includes maintaining this building, not with Band-Aid fixes, but fixes that will last many years into the future, just as the original founders of Covenant built a building we're still using more than 60 years later.

When you fill out your stewardship card, the Stewardship and Finance Team asks you to break down your pledge into two separate pledges. One pledge is for the General Fund to cover normal budgeted expenses (including rising utility costs). The other pledge is for the Building Fund, which is essential to addressing our future needs (such things as painting, furnishings, other roofing issues) as these and other unexpected or planned for expenses occur in the future.

Please give prayerful thought to your pledge for 2025. We are a strong church community, and we have a strong and beautiful building, used not only by our members, but by others who are outside our church community. Let's keep this building as beautiful and strong as it was when it was first built. Thank you.

A SPECIAL NOTE FROM RACHEL—

When our children are baptized, we make a promise to nurture them in the faith, to share the stories of God's love and care with them, and to be a part of their church family. One of the ways we do this is through the Christian Formation programs – Sunday school, Covenant Kids, and Children's and Youth Fellowship. And as we educate our children in the faith, our own formation as sharers of the word grows.

It's a good thing we have a big church family because it takes a lot of hands to make this happen. Each week, 16 adults come together to care for the children in the nursery, teach our children's and youth Sunday school classes, lead our Covenant Kids class, and facilitate our high school youth fellowship. On Friday nights, another team of teachers come together to facilitate elementary and middle school fellowship. While we have a vibrant team of teachers that bring their energy and expertise to this work each week, we depend on the entire community participating through bite-size opportunities throughout the semester.

These opportunities are perfect for adults who attend the adult Sunday school classes or who travel a lot. You can sign up for just one or two weeks across the semester and dip your toe in to see what we are up to. Each of the classes has a lead teacher who will present the lesson and lead the activities. You get to participate in the activities or just be the eyes and ears that help keep our classrooms safe.

With the help of four energetic Covenant Youth and four adults, we made ten quarts of applesauce and delivered them to the Valley Mission. We also delivered three bushels of apples to the Blue Ridge Area Food Bank.

See pictures of some of the fun!
